Far North Queensland Engineering Link Project

Monday 22 & Tuesday 23 July | 8.45am - 4.00pm | James Cook University Cairns An Engineering Link Project is a two-day event for Year 10, 11 and 12 students who are interested in finding out what engineering REALLY is! Everyone will participate in two full-day workshops in different engineering disciplines. Each workshop is designed to challenge your creativity, your knowledge of the maths and science you are learning at school, and introduce you to the engineering paradigm. Professional engineers describe their career and what a day in the life of an engineer is, and present a problem or scenario that has to be solved in teams. Materials testing, detailed calculations, and planning of a solution are all completed before construction starts. The engineer evaluates each solution against the criteria and declares the winning team.

University Co-op Scholarships Guide

The Study Work Grow Research Team have been working like mad to bring you this Ultimate Guide, packed with everything you need to know to put yourself in the best position to get a Co-op Scholarship.

These scholarships offer much more than just money (although we always like the cold hard cash). You'll get access to exclusive mentoring, work experience, leadership programs, and other benefits to make your transition to uni easier, like a relocation allowance, gym membership, and accommodation support. And while some of these programs are highly competitive, you'd be surprised at how achievable scoring one of the scholarships could be, so if you've worked hard at school check out what's available.

We've checked with every single university across Australia to bring you the details you need:

- How to apply
- Eligibility Criteria
- How much you could get
- Application deadlines

If you're a Study Work Grow member you can access the Guide for free here. If you aren't a member yet it's easy, you can get a code from your Careers Advisor to register for FREE – just ask them.

What are Soft Skills and why do you need to know about them?

Why your soft skills matter

When you apply for a job you know you'll need to have the right qualifications and technical skills, they're the hard skills, the absolutes for each specific job.

Soft skills are your personal attributes, the things that will enable you to function well in your role, work well in a team, interact with other people and basically make you shine in your job.

Why do employers like them

Imagine you're an employer - you've got 2 employees with the exact same qualifications and technical skills. One of them is positive, adaptable, a great team player and always receives good feedback from customers and colleagues. There is nothing wrong with the second person's skills and ability to get the job done, but they never go the extra mile.

You have to let one employee go.... who would you choose to keep?

Soft skills go beyond what you've learnt at school or Uni, they're the things that aren't generally taught but are really important in creating a well-rounded employee.

Things like:

- common sense
- initiative
- the ability to deal with people
- a positive attitude
- being adaptable

Let's face it, many 'hard skills' are rapidly being replaced by robots, which makes your 'soft skills' more valuable than ever.

Who needs Soft Skills?

Everyone. That's the short answer.

Lots of recent reports indicate that the majority of employers view soft skills as more important than academic qualifications.

Whether you're academically gifted, or more of a hands-on type of person, working on your soft skills is something that you should put to the top of your priority list - and never stop working on.

Top 7 Soft Skills for 2019

1. Communication skills
2. Critical Thinking

3. Leadership
4. Positive Attitude
5. Collaboration
6. Work Ethic
7. Emotional Intelligence
